Colour figures for Chapter 21. Building 52 and related buildings

Burcu Tung and Marek Z. Barański

Figure 21.3. Overview of Space 94, pre-excavation 2013. The erosion on the surfaces of the platforms and the undercutting of the walls is clearly evident (photograph by Jason Quinlan).

Figure 21.17. Remnants of superstructure (23420) of oven F.8504 in the southwestern corner of Sp.576. Facing south. The slight depression by the mouth of the oven would have been a hearth area. Immediately to the left of the fire installation is pit F.8503, which is likely where the entry ladder rested (photograph by Marek Barański).

Figure 21.18. Bin F.2003 in 2008, after its fill had been completely removed. Facing east (photograph by Dave Mackie).

Figure 21.21. Burial F.7606 of young adult female (21526) within platform F.7605, facing north (photograph Jason Quinlan).

Figure 21.22. The eastern end of Space 94, with platforms F.7605 and F.7617 and floors (23468), (34461) and (21393). The fire damage from the building's closure seeped deep into the central floor area, as evident from the burnt central region. Facing south (photograph by Vasiliki Koutrafouris).

Figure 21.27. Orthophoto of foundation trench cut (31402) for the construction of wall F.2183. The southern end of wall F.2140 is also truncated by the construction of the southern wall of Sp.90, F.2139, which was bonded to F.2183. The foundation trench for F.2139 was recorded on the southern side of F.2139 as cut (16755) in 2008 (orthophoto by Jason Quinlan).

Figure 21.33. Overview of southwestern platform F.2177 with bench F.2118 and floors (30519). Facing west (photograph by Paul Eklov Pettersson).

Figure 21.34. Daily sketch by Rémi Hadad showing burial cuts in north of the main room and some of the relationships around bench F.7118, including the appearance of divisions in the southwest platform F.2177 (see fig. 21.35).

Figure 21.35. Overview of the two partitioned spaces created by the construction of divisions F.7315 and F.7316 on top of platform F.2177 (photograph by Rémi Hadad).

Figure 21.40. Burial F.7334 within the fill of platform F.7122. No cuts could be associated with the disturbed infant skeleton which seems to have been placed on the floor of platform F.2177, within the division created by F.7316 and F.7315. Facing south (photograph by Scott Haddow).

Figure 21.41. Overview of the western activity area within Sp.94 at the end of B.52 Phase 5.2. Access F.2109 is in line with the short-lived mini-platform created by the filling of divisions F.7315 and F.7316 (photograph by Jason Quinlan).
