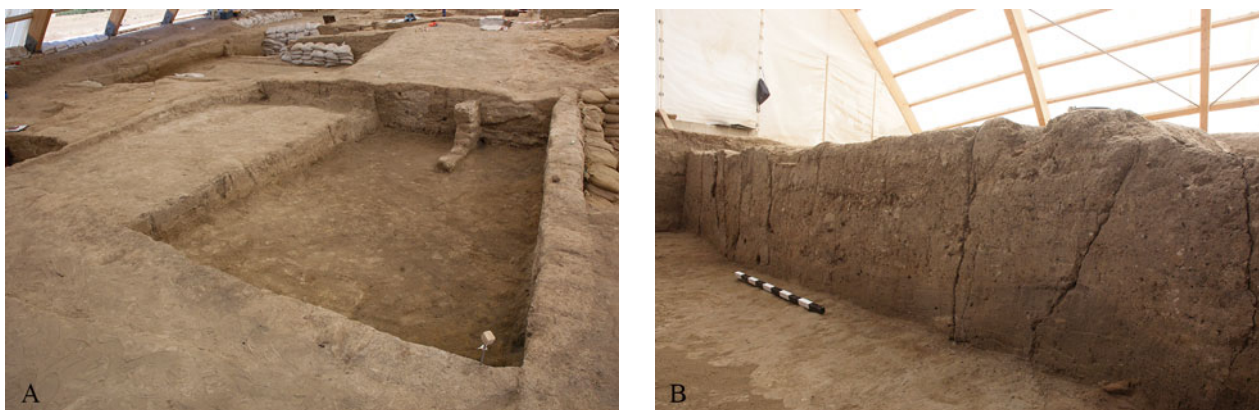

Figure 27.10. (a) South-facing view of the removal of the infill of B.119; (b) northeast-facing overview of the cross section created in the excavation process. The fill was quite uniform and compact, indicating that the walls of the building were heavily processed, possibly to create a stable ground for the successor B.112 (photographs by Numan Arslan).

Figure 27.11. East-facing view of cluster (21504) and ashy fill (21370) within oven F.7322 (photograph by Christoffer Hagberg).
