Figure S21.3. Northern platforms F.8524 and F.8525, differentiated from each other with a kerb, in B.167. Facing north (photograph by Jason Quinlan).

Figure S21.4. Burial F.8516, Sk. (23805) within platform F.8524, facing south (photograph by Jason Quinlan).

Figure S21.5. Burial F.8521, which contained primary burial of an adult female, skeleton (23827) and the primary disturbed skeleton of juvenile (23837). Facing west (photograph by Jason Quinlan).

Figure S21.10. Pit F.7778 within platform F.7637, which could have been a cache that was emptied and filled, like a later pit in the same area, F.7555 in Phase B52.5 (photograph by Weronika Stosik).

Figure S21.12. Overview of the western activity area at the end of B.52 Phase 3. Step F.7642 is substantially reduced in size, and the plaster renderings have added considerable height to the area. Above platform F.7637 is plaster floor (21392) and above platform F.7637 is plaster floor (21397) (photograph by Paul Eklöv Pettersson)

Figure S21.18. Overview of the southern activity area within Sp.94, specifically the constellation of scoops and the imprint of hearth F.1482. Facing south (photograph by Remi Hadad).
